Sensory processing difficulties have a significant impact on both the child and the family. This presentation is designed for parents who have children with sensory processing challenges. The program offers parents a better understanding of the support needed in order for their child to manage everyday tasks. An overview of Sensory Processing will be presented. General guidelines and specific sensory strategies to use with your child at home will be discussed.

Pamela Smith, OTR/L is a registered Occupational Therapist from OT for Developing Kids in Latham, NY. She has 14 years of experience working with children whose difficulty with processing and integrating sensations impacts the regulation of their behavior and motor skills.
